MOVEMENTS OF THE STARS.

A New Telescope at Greenwich, England, for Spectro-Photography.

During the past three or four years the observatory buildings at Greenwich and their equipment have undergone a very considerable change. That is, speaking internally. Viewed from the outside the visitor approaching it from the railway sees no change. It is only when the steep ascent has been climbed and the entrance gate has been reached that an extra dome or two can be noticed of that green tint peculiar to the place. But once inside the high inclosing wall it is seen that there is little in common with the building that was erected over two centuries ago for John Flamsteed, the first astronomer royal.

The old building has not been interfered with, but in the grounds to the right a new series of buildings has been erected. A small but handsome red brick building is first seen in which is a new altazimuth, which has only recently been erected and has not yet been got into working order. Under the largest dome is the 28-inch refrac-tor, which has been in working order now for about two years. The next smallest dome covers the new building, which has been prepared for the new telescope presented by Sir Henry Thompson now being placed in position. This new building is the initial portion of what will be, when completed a very handsome block. That which is being got ready for use is a handsome red brick building, to which wings will be added when funds are forthcoming.
The observatory being in the hands of the admiralty department, the money requisite for improvements is not readily obtainable. The needs of our first line of defense are so great that the admiralty has not much interest in the observatory beyond depending upon it for its supply of duly attested chronometers for the navy. The 28-inch telescope which was added three years ago was not provided until it was absolutely necessary. And then no building was forthcoming to put it in.

Determined not to let the telescope, which was too big for the building, Mr. Christie devised a new dome, which gave the extra space required. This liberated the old dome, so long a feature of the observatory, and that is now to be used for the new 28-inch telescope just acquired. It is really small for that, but the best will have to be made of it.

The telescope which Sir Howard Grubb has now completed is for spectro-photography. The spectrum, as everybody knows, is a scattering of the different colors of light. The examination of these gives much information as to the body that is being looked at; and it can be done by viewing through an eye-piece. But it is far more convenient to take a photograph, which can be examined at leisure. When the 28-inch telescope was fixed a spectroscopic was attached; but work with that was given up about 18 months ago, when Sir Henry Thompson proposed 25,000 for a special telescope for this work. The new telescope will take some 12 months to get into working order. When it is ready it will be assigned a special duty.
There are, of course, several branches of spectro-analysis which can be taken up. One is to examine the chemistry of objects by the analysis of its light. What will be taken up here is an examination of the spectrum as a means of determining the rate of motion of the body looked at in the line of sight—how fast it is approaching or receding. This is the work which Mr. H.
F. Newall has been carrying on at Cambridge with a 24-inch telescope.

Imitating the Ladies.
On Saturday afternoon a gentleman was observed walking down Regent street with a nickel-plated American clock fastened to the breast of his overcoat. He was quickly surrounded by a large crowd, and in a very short time he was stopped by a police officer, who drew his attention to the fact that he was creating an obstruction.
After pointing out to the officer that he had as good a right to wear a clock as some hundreds of ladies passing had, he removed the timepiece and roared of laughter, and the crowd dispersed. — Westminster Gazette.

A Sign of Insanity.
Dr. Burton Ward, according to the Medical Age, declares that there "is one infallible symptom indicating whether one is sane or not. Let a person speak ever so rationally and never so sedately, if his or her thumbs remain inactive there is no doubt of insanity. Lunatics seldom make use of their thumbs when writing, drawing or saluting."

Chief of Naval Equipment.
The average cost of men-of-war in Nelson's time was only $200,000 for a large 100-gun ship. The Magnificent, one of the latest and finest in the British navy, cost $4,500,000.

Kentucky N. Y. C. Convention.
A marked characteristic of the present day is a multiplicity of organizations. An important, indeed, an essential factor in the growth of a great organization is its perpetual concern for fellowship, inspiration, reports of work accomplished, comparison of methods, and laying of plans for further work. Among the many conventions of the year, none promises to be of greater interest and significance than the Annual Meeting of the Kentucky Young Men's Christian Association, which is to be held at Frankfort, February 18-21. A very attractive program has been arranged. Among the speakers are Rev. Carter Heim Jones, D. D., and Prof. Wm. H. Marquess, D. D., of Louisville; Hon. Richard P. Ernst, of Covington, and others equally well known. The railroads have granted one fare for the round trip. The Frankfort Association expects to entertain 300 delegates. Young men from towns having no Association will be welcomed as honorary delegates if they bring credentials from their pastors. Further particulars, credentials, programs, etc., may be obtained of any Association Secretary in the State, or from Henry E. Rose-year, State Secretary, Fourth and Broadway, Louisville.

In times such as we are passing through it is of great importance that all moral forces be sustained and supported, and it is gratifying to know that the Young Men's Christian Association movement in Kentucky has experienced a healthy growth and development under the adverse circumstances of the past year.

Something to Know.
It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters.
This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centers in the stomach, gently stimu-lates the Liver and Kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. Sold for 50c or $1.00 per bottle at Williams &
Bell's Drug Store.

OLATON
Mr. Bob McDaniel and sister, Miss Kate, returned Saturday from a visit to friends near Fordsville.
Miss Linda Harris returned Friday from a visit to friends and relatives in Grayson county.
Miss Josie Daniel, of near here, is visiting her sister, Mrs. L. Felix, of Spring Link.
Mrs. Mary Hoover is still improving. Rev. F. M. Farris is some better at this writing. Mr. T. M. Bond was called to his home in Louisville last Saturday week by telegram to the bedside of his son, who has typhoid fever.

The dark angel of death has again visited the home of Mr. and Mrs.
Bob Daniel and claimed his mother, Mrs. Minnie Daniel. Aunt Minnie, as she was familiarly called, was about 92 years old and leaves a host of sorrowing friends and relatives.
Her remains were interred in the Smith burying ground near Olaton on the 10th. How sad were the words to me on last Saturday morning week that Aunt Minnie was dead, but she is at rest.

The Secret of a speedy cure in sickness lies in selecting the proper remedy and this is difficult to do unless one is sure what the ailment is. But one thing is sure, had the liver been actively at work sickness could not have come. It is then always safe to take Simmons' Liver Regulator which keeps the liver well regulated and all poison expelled from the system.

IN THE HIGHLANDS.

Where Millais Drew Inspiration for Many of His Finest Pictures.
The late Sir John Millais was, as everybody knows, exceedingly fond of the Perthshire highlands, and painted or drew inspiration for many of his finest pictures there.
Contributor to the Dundee Advertiser, who has been following the artist's footsteps in that charming region, tells that the first picture he painted in Perthshire was "The Fringe of the Moor." The painter was then living at St. Mary's Tower.
The scene of the picture was on the hill behind Kennacott, a bold gray rock which rises abruptly on the north side of Strathmore, immediately over the Rumbling bridge.
There the painter directed his hut to be erected, a substantial wooden structure with a large skylight in the roof open to the west. Millais' big pictures usually occupied six weeks to a day or two. He always came during the first week of October, and went away about the middle of November.

This was of course the time of year that the autumn tints were in their glory, and the painter grudged to lose an hour, so evenness were their hues. This was probably one of the reasons why he painted on Sunday, a fact which rather scandalized the Scottish countryfolk.
Once the man who was carrying his painting paraphernalia ventured to remonstrate with him. "Do ye not think it's sinful, Mr. Millais, for me to carry yer picture and things on the Sabbath day?" The artist laughed and assured him promptly that whatever guilt attached to the work he would take on his own shoulders.
"Over the Hills and Far Away" was painted on the moor above the deserted hamlet of Tom-

Loss of Memory, with a painful sensation of Fusion in Henderson county has been given a hard blow by the announcement of Mr. Hawkins, a silverite, who says he is going to make the race for Sheriff, having been shut out by the agreement.

SOME howling silverite organs continue to contribute the bank failures to the McKinley Administration months before McKinley is inaugurated. Unsound business—Bryanism, &c.—in banking is as disastrous as it is in politics. Bad banking caused these failures.

The Republicans of Breckinridge county will hold a primary election February 27, to nominate candidates for the various county offices to be held next November. Among the list of announced candidates we see the name of Mr. Jesse R. Eskridge for County Attorney. Mr. Eskridge is one of the foremost young lawyers of the State and if given the nomination for County Attorney he will be a sure winner.

EVERYWHERE all over Kentucky where the office-seeking element in both the Democratic and Populist parties have attempted to fuse for county offices there has been a great kick from both parties. The Populists have about converted the Democratic party and should always demand that their device be used on the ballots. The Populists cannot afford to give up their principles in order to accommodate a few office-seekers in the Democratic party.

THE break in the Democratic party is widening every day, and since the silverites have shown a disposition to go into an alliance with their hated enemy—the Populists—the true Democrats are keeping aloft from them. They claim that there "can be no medium grounds," and if Democracy is right Populism is wrong or vice versa. The Louisville Times says: "Congressman Owen expresses the opinion that there will be no union of the silverites and the Democrats in Kentucky, because the silver men are not willing to give up the issue even in local contests. Mr. Owens is right. The Democratic party will never be united until the ten lost tribes return to the true faith."

The majority of the free silver papers of Kentucky are continuously crying hard times and charging it all to the McKinley administration before the administration begins. In regard to such the Madisonville Hustler says: "Don't sit down and wait for prosperity to come by legislature, but go to work and bring as much of it as possible by individual effort. While it is true that times are hard, yet it will make them none the easier by eternally complaining of these same times."

The Owensboro Evening Press is opposed to fusion with other parties for the sake of office. In a recent issue the Press says:

"Of all un-Democratic things a fusion, by which one-half or any other fraction of the offices are bartered away is the worst. It is even corrupt. When a known Democrat like John Hawkins, of Henderson, who has served his party always, faithfully giving up his own wishes for the sake of harmony and success, desires to run for an office for which he is fully qualified, and which a majority of his party and the people would like to see him fill, is met with the statement from his committee when he desires to announce his candidacy, that he cannot run as a Democrat, that the office has been sold and the nomination delivered to a member of another party to be paid for in votes which he is supposed to be able to control, the time has come when party allegiance seems to be a virtue. This is what happens to Hawkins, and he shows his manhood by refusing to accept the result of this corrupt deal, and announces for office as an independent candidate. The Evening Press is willing to surrender a good many things to party organization, but it will not agree to a surrender of manhood and honor for the sake of office. If it can be of any service to Mr. Hawkins he has only to say how or when or where, and it is at his service."

REMEMBER the Republican Convention on February 13. Be at your voting place.

THERE are good men in the Republican party to fill all the offices and every Republican should attend his precinct convention on February 13.

THE banquet at the Louisville Hotel last Thursday night in honor of Sam J. Roberts, late Chairman of the Campaign Committee, was a success in every particular. Plates were laid for one hundred, and the list, included, besides the Louisville Republicans who provided the entertainment, Congressman and defeated candidates for Congress, members of State Central Committee and members of State Executive Committee. Hon. Chas. Ballard presided as toastmaster, and at his right sat Hon. Sam J. Roberts, the guest of the evening, and on his left Hon. C. M. Barnett. The speakers of the evening were Hon. Sam J. Roberts, Hon. John W. Yerkes, Hon. A. E. Willson, Hon. E. T. Franks, Hon. Chas. Richie and Hon. C. M. Barnett. Mr. Barnett responded to the sentiment, "Great principles and thorough organization always win; in times of peace prepare for war." The Louisville paper's reports of the speakers, speak in highest terms of all the speeches. Mr. Barnett's effort, which was a plea for continued compact organization and party harmony, was especially commended. The best of feeling prevailed at the meeting, and it will have a good effect hereafter.

Hard Times are Going
The Ram's Horn says:

Hard times are vanishing as fast as damp and heavy clouds dissolve in the path of the rising sun. Furnaces are beginning to roar again in full blast, ocean steamships are furrowing the seas with cargoes of grain, going eastward, and with gold, coming westward. Men smile, women sing, and all but universal anthem of praise and thanksgiving is swelling heavenward to the throne of bounty and of grace. But after all, times have not been so hard as they once were. A great deal of the panic has been in our brains, and not in our business. The great majority of people have lived about the same. The fact is, few of us know what "Hard Times" means. As a friend recently said: "We talk about 'hard times,' while we eat beef steak at 20 cents a pound; oysters, at 50 cents a dozen, and three kinds of bread at the same meal; we groan it as we read our morning and evening papers, our plentiful magazines and our costly libraries; we dream of it in our soft and springy beds, while our coal-fueled furnace keeps the whole house warm; we maunder about it in our well-equipped offices, shout it through our telephones, ring the changes on it as we send telegrams and take expensive summer outings. We meet in our political, social, literary and business conventions, and ring the changes on it while we are spending fortunes with railroads, hotels, restaurants and places of amusement."

Our Mutual Dependence.
Here in this country we are dependent upon each other, no matter what our occupation may be. All of us want good times, good wages, good prices, and good markets.—[Wm. McKinley.]

The Free-Traders are forever, and eternally, trying to stir up class feeling. They tell the workmen that the Protective Tariff hurts them and helps the manufacturers. They tell the farmers that the Protective Tariff hurts them and helps the industrial classes. They tell everybody that the Protective Tariff hurts them and helps everybody else; that it hurts the consumers and helps the producers. It is quite inconsistent with the utter disregard of the Free-Traders for everything but theories for them to see that every one in this country is a consumer and every one a producer; that the entire industrial system is a great co-operative enterprise. The farmer produces food for the manufacturer to consume and the manufacturer produces goods for the farmer to consume. The manufacturer of boots and shoes consumes the products of the manufacturer of clothing, and vice versa. The workman gets work when the manufacturer has a market for his products and gets good wages when the manufacturer gets good prices. In Major McKinley's words, "We are dependent upon each other."

Hard times are felt everywhere and prosperity touches every one. We have had enough of Free-Trade hard times and are ready to go back to Protection and Prosperity.—[Economist.]

Things to be Remembered.
It must not be forgotten that the demand of the free-traders in the campaign of 1892 was for a reduction of revenue, the then existing laws having the effect of producing a surplus. The McKinley bill was a bill for reducing the revenue. No measure ever passed by Congress was more grossly misrepresented. It was not an excessively high tariff measure; it had the largest free list of any tariff bill ever passed, and it was the most systematic, logical and fairly balanced ever enacted.

It reduced the revenues, but it produced sufficient revenues until the election of Mr. Cleveland on a platform pledging him and his party to repeal it and wipe out every vestige of protection from our statute books. There had not been a tariff, from the foundation of the Government, that did not give some protection, and for thirty years previous to 1892 there had been high protective duties, and it was mere imbecility to propose such an absolute, radical and abrupt change of policy without recognizing that it would cause an immense and disastrous disturbance of business.

The silver crazy never have amounted to anything, the problem of a single or double standard would have been gradually brought toward a settlement without a panic, if it had not been for the reckless effort to overthrow, in a day, a system to which the business of the country had adjusted itself for 100 years, and under the fullest development of which it had, for thirty years, proposed to a degree unequalled in the history of the world. These are facts to be remembered in talking about tariffs. There was never a more unbusinesslike, unstatesmanlike and destructive policy emanated by a party than the declaration in the Chicago platform that all protective duties are unconstitutional, and pledging itself to wipe them from the statute book, utterly and at once, and disaster was as sure to follow the success of a party, pledged to such a policy as day is to follow night. It was not simply the announcement of a theory that caused the trouble, but the declaration of a purpose, and the exhibition of power to carry the purpose into effect.

We do not believe that any intelligent and unbiased student of the campaigns of 1890 or 1892, after a full consideration of all the elements entering into them, will decide that either was meant as a verdict against the McKinley bill or protection. Anybody who does think so must admit that the verdict was reconsidered and reversed in the election of 1893, '94 and '95.—[Commercial.]

CASTORIA.
The Indirect Effect of Protection.
The Secretary of the Treasury in his last annual report undertook to show that tariff protection could not be very important because only a few million of the workingmen engaged in protective industries were directly helped by protective duties favoring the industries in which they were engaged, while more were employed in industries not protected. Increasing the advantages of even a few million of our workmen is something worth considering, but the Secretary like most doctrinaire free traders, ignored the indirect effects of protection.

A large manufacturer of leather recently wrote this in reply to a question about the effect of duties on his business: "We are not directly affected by importation of foreign goods, but are indirectly very much affected by it, as it lessens the sale of our produce to a great many of our customers who suffer directly from importations of foreign goods in their line."

That is the way carpenters and blacksmiths and street car drivers and thousands of other men who are engaged in industries not subject to foreign competition are affected by the tariff. People with whom they deal, people who furnish them custom, people on whose prosperity the activity and prosperity of their business depends, are helped by protection and injured by free trade, and they are affected, beneficially or injuriously, according as their customers fare. Business ties reach out in all directions and one prosperous protected industry helps the business of thousands whose connection with it cannot be shown on tariff schedules.—[Ex.]

Pleasantry and Absence.
"I was taken with pleurisy in my right side and had an abscess in my stomach at the same time. I coughed badly and suffered very severely. I did obtain relief from physicians, and seeing so much about Hood's Sarsaparilla I began taking it. I soon began to improve and when I had taken four bottles I was completely cured." M. E. Mann, Demossville, Ky.

Obituary.
On the night of January 1, 1897, the angel of death visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Williams and claimed from their darling boy, little Marion, and waited his gentle spirit to a land unknown. Flow shocked and grieved were the hearts of his many friends and relatives when the sad news was told. Little did I think as I listened to that prattling tongue but a few weeks ago that it would be the last time on earth. But the brightest flowers are the first to fade, and we must bow in submission to the will of God who doeth all things well. He is gone, but we will never forget that smiling face. We will be in our dreams, floating o'er our minds like shadows on the moonlit waters. We rejoice that we have a hope of meeting little Marion in that beautiful beyond where no sorrow comes, and where parting is no more. Dear parents and little sisters, while there is one less at home there is one more in Heaven, one who is standing at that beautiful gate beckoning you to the right hand of God. ALICE.

Writes of his Southern Trip—School Facilities, &c.

CAMILLA, GA., Jan. 14, 1897.
KIND EDITOR:—We shall indeed be grateful to you for a permit to have inserted in the columns of your newsy sheet a few lines from the pen of one who has not forgotten the ties that bind men together as friends and brothers.

We do not desire to consume much of your valuable space in your paper and would be unkind to ask it, but merely desire to note something that will make known our whereabouts and be of interest to those who may chance to read them.

After spending a few days in Florida, we decided to make the "Bazaar" State a visit and so we came to this beautiful little city of twelve hundred inhabitants, the county seat of Mitchell county.

We do not mean that there are twelve hundred white people in the place, for we are assured that three fourths are black.

This is the case throughout the South and one can readily see why this is true. The weather is warm during the entire year and the colored race, admire and appreciate that kind of a climate, very much.

Camilla is a business town and while there are six or seven churches there is also a fine school building. The people are "up-to-date" people and while they do not fail to look after their business interests and the general interest of the town they spare no pains and means to make strangers feel perfectly at home.

Here we find Kentucky hospitality and we are forcibly reminded of the fact that Southern people are the same wherever you meet them.

This State is somewhat behind in school work, but is fast coming to the front and ere long Georgia will rank among the foremost in educational interests.

There are but eight branches in the common school curriculum and while the examinations are easier, in some respects, than in other States, they are more rigid in others. Mr. J. H. Powell is Superintendent of this county and while he is growing in years, he is quite enthusiastic and good results are the products of his zeal.

We cannot say more for our friends in old Kentucky at this time, but shall write again before we go to Cuba.

CASTORIA.
The Man Who "stops" His Paper.
Speaking of the fellow who "stops" his paper because of something or other it says or thinks that doesn't happen to suit him, the Danville Advocate draws a pretty good picture. It says:

Watch him as he prepares for the tragedy. He gets red in the face, prances up and down his room for an hour, swells up until he resembles a hot air balloon at the bursting point, grabs his pen and does the bloody deed.

He seldom goes in person to the editor. Perhaps he is afraid that he might kill the editor if he did, or that the editor might die of fright at his approach.

And after he "stops" his paper, and the paper does not shiver up and die he wonders at its hold on life after he has withdrawn his support. In fact, as time goes on, the paper appears to grow larger, while he gets smaller and smaller. In truth, so curious does he become at this strange result madness, that he gets in the habit of borrowing and reading his neighbor's copy of the paper just to see how it is getting along since he quit. If he will jump into a pool of water fifty feet deep and get a photograph of the hole that is left after he disappears beneath the surface, he will obtain something of an idea of the impression he made upon the paper's prosperity.

Keep Middle-of-the-Road.
The Free Republic, the official organ of the Populist party, in the State, says:

Out in Idaho the silver Democrats in the Legislature deserted their Populist allies, and joined with the Republicans to organize the House.

Good!
Now let the Idaho Populists sue for a complete divorce on the ground of desertion, and hereafter let the Democratic politicians tote their own skill.

If the Populists had not furnished the votes, there would have been no Democrats in the Legislature to speak of.

The Democrats always betray their allies. Better keep in the middle of the road and let the Demmies hoe their own "taters."

The Survival of the Fittest.
The Free-Traders tell us that under Free-Trade there would be the free working of nature's law and that it would be the "survival of the fittest."

If they knew a little more about what "survival of the fittest" means, they would not talk so much about it. It means the survival of the one who best fits into existing conditions, not the one fittest to survive because of superior qualities.

The Chinaman who eats rats and mice and lives in filth and squalor can survive under conditions which would kill an American, who is the product of a higher civilization and who requires comfort and cleanliness for his body and food for his mind as well. It is evident that a Chinaman could live more cheaply than an American. And in the unrestricted competition for cheap labor, the Chinaman would come out ahead every time. He is the one who would survive. It would be the survival of the one fittest to endure the most evil conditions. This is just what Free Trade means. It means literally unrestricted competition between the labor of American workmen and the labor of the men who represent the lowest civilization on earth. What the result would be is obvious. The American people want none of it.—[Economist.]

A man who stopped his paper through the postoffice, without settling came to town last week, and after catching the measles dropped in on us, and said—"It was the most cowardly and contemptible thing a man can be guilty of, and don't say anything about it for I have been ashamed to look a man in the face since, here is your money and I want the paper for another year." There is hope for this man, but he was nearly torn past patching.—Plainsdealer.

Do not allow your system to get weak and debilitated. It is easy to keep well and strong by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Deputy Jailor John M. Asby has returned from Wickliffe, Ky., where he has been to secure affidavits of his whereabouts on the night the mob attempted to break into the Henderson jail. He filed the affidavits in the Henderson court and moved that the indictment be dismissed, but Judge Givens refused to dismiss it, saying it would do no harm to wait awhile. It is thought, however, that he will shortly dismiss the indictment against Mr. Asby.

Some of the Henderson papers stated that Mr. Asby had gone to Henderson to bring suit against the county for indicting him. He says, however, that he never thought of such a thing, and that he has no intention of doing so in the future. He says that what he dislikes most about the indictment is it might injure his father, who is a candidate for re-election as jailer, and that that is the reason he is in a hurry to have the case dismissed. He says he feels confident that Judge Givens will soon clear him of all connection with the case.—[Owensboro Messenger.]

The case of the Commonwealth vs.
Mrs. Webster Cate, for scalding Mr.
Foreman at Sulphur Springs, came up last Saturday for trial, but owing to the condition of Mr. Foreman the case was postponed until the 26th, and she was held under $1,000 bond, and her husband, Mr. Webster Cate, signed the bond.

The revival is still in progress at the Methodist Church, and a great deal of interest is being manifested by both saint and sinner. Large crowds greet the minister on every coming together. Dr. Briggs is preaching some eloquent and soul-stirring sermons, and there has been a general revival among the christians of every denomination.

Mr. Marvin Bean and Miss Eva Morton were married at the C. P.
Church Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. A large number of the friends of the young people were in attendance.
Revs. Chandler and Hicks performed the ceremony. Misses Stella Thomas, Ella Cox, Edna Griffin and Mabelle Hubbard were the bridesmaids. The Church was darkened and as the bride couple with attendants marched down the aisles to the altar, keeping time with the wedding march played by Miss Maimie Ross, it made a beautiful and impressive sight.
Messrs. Chas. Rogers, Ino. T. Moore, R. T. Collins and R. D. Walker were the ushers. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party left for a Southern tour.

In Memory
Of little Flossie Williams, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Williams, who passed from earth to glory January 14. How sad it was to friends and relatives when they heard Flossie was dead. Her form lies beneath the cold and icy ground, but she is resting in Jesus' arms, but when we think of that beautiful crown that she will have and joyful harp, how sweet it will be to think of that home above the skies where she is resting. Jesus thought it best, but parents weep not for Flossie, but think of that time when you shall meet her in that bright beyond where parting is no more.

ETHEL HUNTER.

To the Republicans of Ohio County You are all doubtless aware of the fact that I am a candidate for Circuit Court Clerk of Ohio county, subject to the Republican party, in convention February 13, 1897. I have been over most parts of the county, and would have been glad to have seen every Republican personally before the convention, but I find that to be impossible, hence I address you with this card.

I have always officiated with the Republican party and have supported those principles at all times, and have devoted my entire time and attention to further the cause as editor of your county paper, and this is the first time I have come before my party asking for an endorsement for any office. I trust that my friends in each precinct will look after my interests and urge that the Republicans attend the convention and give me the endorsement which I ask at your hands.

If nominated, I will use all honorable means to carry your banner to victory in the final election.

Again thanking my friends for their assurance of support, and soliciting a continuance of same, I remain, Yours truly,
SAM A. ANDERSON.

Money for the Teachers.
Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 20.—While there is not enough money in the treasury or the School Fund to pay all the last one-fifth payment due the public schools on January 1, it has been discovered that there is half enough, and the Auditor, with the co-operation of Superintendent Davidson, to-day mailed checks aggregating one-half of this final payment.
This leaves about one-tenth of all the money due the teacher yet to be paid and it is doubtful if they get it before all the schools have closed. This is owing to the fact that there will be competitively little revenue, out of which the school fund get a share, coming in before July 1.

Abominable Catarrh.

It is not reasonable to expect to be cured of any disease, no matter how constant and persevering the treatment, when that treatment is altogether misdirected, and can not possibly reach the trouble.

This explains why those afflicted with catarrh meet with so much discouragement. Though they faithfully take the usual treatment consisting of sprays, washes, etc., and pass through the summer without much discomfort, as soon as cold weather returns, they find themselves more firmly in the grip of the disease than ever. Such results could hardly be expected if the proper treatment had been given.

Any one who has had experience with catarrh will readily admit that it is one of the most obstinate of diseases; it is easy to see, therefore, that it is deep-seated, and that no remedy which merely reaches the surface can have the slightest effect upon it. The only known cure for catarrh is a real blood remedy, one which gets at the seat of the disease—the cause of the trouble—and forces it from the system. Such a remedy is S. S. S. (Swift's Specific).

Mr. H. P. Cook.

Mr. H. P. Cook, of 32 Walker street, Atlanta, Ga., suffered intensely from catarrh. He says:

"I at first thought I had only a bad cold, and didn't give much attention to the obstructions in my nose and throat. This soon became noticeable, and began to inconvenience me, that I applied for treatment and was given the usual local applications of sprays, washes, etc. The immediate effect of the treatment was to relieve me, but only for a short time after application, and I could easily see that the disease was growing worse steadily, and seemed to grow deeper toward my lungs; my nose and throat were constantly choked up, so that I was all the time hawking and spitting, and to add to it all, the disease became very offensive. I was unable to obtain much sleep, being compelled to get up constantly during the night to clear my throat and keep from choking."

"I tried various treatments without relief, as none of the medicines seemed to reach the disease. Finally, some one recommended S. S. S., and before I had finished one bottle, I felt better. I continued the medicine, and it cured me permanently. I truly believe S. S. S. is the only cure for catarrh, the most abominable of all diseases."

S. S. S. is unlike all other blood remedies, because it is more than a mere tonic, and goes directly to the seat of all blood diseases, and cures the most aggravated cases of Cancer, Catarrh, Rheumatism, Eczema, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, etc. S. S. S. is the only blood remedy guaranteed

MIXING WINES.

How the Bordeaux for Foreign Trade Is Prepared.

An American who has been residing in France, and has devoted some time to studying the wines of the country, says that California claret is as good a wine as the claret of France. The Bordeaux wines that are exported to England and America are not pure wines, but are mixed expressly for the foreign trade. The French have a great objection to this fact being known. It is said that a former United States consul to Bordeaux was shot down in the streets after having described the process of mixing in a consular report. The idea that a Frenchman will consume large quantities of wine is a mistake. He will go to an inn, call for a glass of wine, and sit down and play cards. If he is playing for an hour the wine lasts him all that time. He takes but one glass. The French do not like a heavy wine, and the claret they drink is quite light. Even this thin wine is nearly always mixed with water, half and half. They say water brings out the fruity flavor. To meet the English, American and other foreign demand, the French wine dealers at Bordeaux take the thin native wines and mix them with the much heavier wines of Spain and Portugal, and the result is the "Bordeaux" of commerce. The method of mixing is wonderfully rapid and effective. Two bins of French wines are placed close to one of Spanish and one bin of Portuguese wine. Above them all is another bin, empty, and ready for the receipt of the mixed wine. The work of mixing is done by an electric engine, to which is attached four rubber suction pipes, one pipe going from each bin of wine into the empty bin above. The wine from the four bins is thus sucked up and discharged in equal quantities into the empty bin. The mixing is thorough. Malaga wine from Spain, port, possibly from Portugal, and the thin French claret all go into one compound, "Vin Bordeaux." It is a good wine, but it is not a pure wine in the sense of being the product of one kind of grape.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

EARLY STEAM CARRIAGES.

The First One Could Draw Ten Tons Five Miles an Hour.

The merit of inventing a self-acting steam carriage is allowed to be due to Richard Trevithick, a clever but eccentric English engineer. He was the first who practically applied it to work on roads and railways. In 1802, he took out a patent in England for a steam carriage, and this novel machine he exhibited to large and astonished crowds in London. Immediately afterwards he adapted his steam carriage for the drawing of wagons on railways, a duty which it successfully executed on the Merthyr-Tydvil railway in 1804. This was the first railway locomotive, but it was far from perfect. It drew only ten tons of bar iron at the rate of five miles an hour. Through the inventive talent of George Stephenson, the Stockton & Darlington railway in 1825 was the first railway in which passengers traveled in carriages; yet, even with this measure of assured success, the locomotive was still an imperfect machine, for its extreme speed was but little faster than the walk of a horse. The means of imparting speed had yet to be perfected. In response to a premium offered by the projectors of the Liverpool & Manchester railway for the best locomotive, a trial of which was fixed for October, 1829, the Rocket, constructed by Stephenson & Booth, was most successful. This, the first high-speed locomotive, weighed four and a half tons, averaged a speed of 14 miles an hour, with a gross load of 17 tons, its maximum speed being 25 miles.—Hardware.

A Queer Lake in Georgia.

Thompson's lake, two miles north of Grand Ridge, is gradually drying up or running off, an event that occurs about every four or five years. The lake is half a mile long and about 200 yards wide, and has an average depth of 20 feet. An old settler declares that the lake once ran out so fast that its roar and whirl were heard at his house, more than a mile away, and after a few days the lake was refilled from a subterranean source almost as rapidly. When the lake is dry the lake bed is stocked with an abundance of fish. There is always good fishing in the lake and now that it is running off, hundreds of persons are visiting the place.—Atlanta Constitution.

Rainy Days in Ireland.

On the eastern coast of Ireland it rains on an average of 208 days in the year, in England about 150 days, at Kazan about 90 days and in Siberia only 60 days.

—Some men are, in regard to ridicule, like tin-roofed buildings in regard to hail; all that hits them bounds rattling off; not a stone goes through.—H. W. Beecher.

THE ENGLISH PREMIER.

His Power as the Maker and Un-maker of Cabinets.

The prime minister as a rule makes his cabinet. He is commissioned by the queen to form a cabinet because he is the man whom she considers to possess the confidence of a majority of the house of commons. He forms his cabinet by asking certain members of the two houses to hold the great offices of state. He might do this in one day and without consulting anyone.

As a matter of fact, what usually happens is this: As soon as the commission to form a government has been received, the prime minister takes into his confidence the two or three men who will hold the chief offices, and they together talk over the other members. When a man is decided upon, he, as a rule, joins the conclave, and helps to consult as to men and places, and so the cabinet gradually evolves itself. No doubt, as generally happens in this world, the prime minister's choice is never really free. Certain men must be in the cabinet whatever happens, and hence they may be said not to be chosen by the premier, but to be ministers in their own right.

In spite, however, of this, the fact that they are asked to serve by the premier makes them feel his superiority. When the cabinet is made, the theory of the unwritten constitution is that the cabinet governs. In reality it seldom does anything of the kind. Each cabinet minister has very great power in his own department, but the cabinet as a cabinet can do little. Since, however, it knows everything, or almost everything, that is going on, it can exercise a great deal of indirect power. The previous knowledge that the majority of the cabinet would like or dislike a particular policy has a great influence, but still the cabinet does not rule.

Who, then, really rules? The prime minister. What gives the prime minister this power? In the first place, he summons and presides over, and so largely controls, the cabinet meetings. Next, if a vacancy occurs, he fills it up, and so can promote men from the lower to the higher offices. Then he can and does confer with his colleagues in regard to the business of their departments, and so has a hold upon the whole machine of government. Sir Robert Peel saw every member of his cabinet separately every day. Again, if there is a difference between two other members of the government, the premier decides. There is an irreconcilable difference between himself and a minister, it is the minister, and not the premier, who resigns. Lastly, the prime minister can by resigning himself dissolve the whole ministry. These things, small in themselves, taken together make the prime minister's position what it is. He makes and can unmake a cabinet. He presides over it, and he has the right to advise in regard to every department, though this right is, of course, seldom exercised, and he has secured to him beforehand the support of the rank and file of any cabinet if it comes to a struggle between him and the cabinet. If the premier is beaten, he has it in his power to upset the whole machine of government. Hence the voices of those who want to keep in office are always found on the side of the premier.—London Spectator.

ASBESTOS.

Some General Facts About Its Production and Utility.

There is probably no production of inorganic nature about which there is so much popular mystery and misconception as asbestos. It is vaguely understood that the principal claim of this remarkable product to attention is that it cannot be consumed by fire, and not infrequently the effect of the mention of asbestos is to carry the hearer back to the days when the people of the Pharaohs wrapped their dead in cere-cloths woven from the fiber in order to preserve them, the body having been first embalmed. manie stories have also come down to us of ancient demonstrations of magic in which asbestos has played the leading part, but the real interest in asbestos centers in the present. It is of more importance to the human race to-day than it has been in the whole range of history.

Asbestos has been found in all quarters of the globe. It comes from Italy, China, Japan, Australia, Spain, Portugal, Hungary, Germany, Russia, the Cape, Central Africa, Canada, Newfoundland, this country, and from Southern and Central America. The asbestos generally found in the United States, especially in Virginia, the Carolinas and Texas, also in Staten Island, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, is in appearance like fossilized wood.

Notwithstanding this wide distribution of asbestos, the only varieties which at present appear to demand serious consideration, from a commercial point of view, are the Russian, the South African, the Italian and the Canadian. The principal claim possessed by the Russian fiber is a place in this quartzite is based on the enormous extent of the deposits which have been discovered in East Russia, beyond the Ural mountains and Russian Siberia. So far their specimens have been of comparatively poor quality. The yield is used almost entirely in Europe, where it is mixed with the Canadian for spinning, making paper, and other purposes where an inferior grade can be utilized.

Before the development of the Canadian fields, the Italian asbestos was supreme in the market. For nearly 20 years Italy has been looked to for the best grades of the fiber. But the Italian asbestos industry, once so important, is already on the down grade. The difficulties of mining are very great, and unduly increase the cost of production. The asbestos itself, judged by the latest standards, is of inferior quality; it is not easy to spin, and it does not pulp well in the making of paper. As a matter of fact, Canada contains the greatest asbestos region of the world, in the sense that while its mines are practically unlimited in productive capacity, the product is of a quality which fully meets the requirements of the newest and most exacting of the innumerable uses that are daily being found for it.—H. G. Guy, in N. Y. Post.

WILLIAM MORRIS' UTOPIA.

How the Socialist Poet Came to Write "News from Nowhere."

Mr. Walter Crane says that William Morris' Utopian romance "News from Nowhere," was written as a sort of counterblast to Bellamy's "Looking Backward." That was undoubtedly Morris' intention. He used to be considerably annoyed, in the course of his socialist lecturing, at criticism which went upon the assumption that he desired the establishment of a system of society out and dried to its smallest details; and when Bellamy's famous book appeared, with its infinite detail and precise statements as to the minute regulation of life in the society of the future, the American picture of Morris was frequently quoted to Morris as a proof of the hardness and want of human plasticity that would prevail under a socialist regime. It was after one of his lectures, when this criticism had been urged for the hundredth time or so, that the poet lost his temper and declared to a group of comrades just afterwards: "I'll write a Utopia myself." And "News from Nowhere" was the result.—Westminster Gazette.

REMINISCENT.

The Fine Art of Electioneering—A Farmer's "Election Boats."

With some men electioneering is a fine art. They can shake hands with the mother and kiss the baby with great unctious and apparent relish. There is Judge —, who will walk through the streets at a rally before he makes his speech, and speak to everybody he meets. He once imparted to me in a low voice the philosophy of his conduct. "If these men don't know me," he said, "I must not fail to recognize them." Sometimes a man whom he had been greeting would refer to a previous conversation or a letter or some other awkward circumstance which he could not remember. In every case, however, he parried the stroke so skillfully that the man left without the slightest idea that he had not been recognized. The judge's face wore a perpetual smile. Sometimes when he saw a man approaching he would ask a man that man's name, but from the meeting which followed, the inquiries about the family and the news of the neighborhood one would imagine that the two had been upon the most intimate terms since boyhood. The judge could carry his state by a larger majority than any other man in it.

Many of the old farmers have great reverence for election day. I met one this year, a man 80 years of age, who showed me with great enthusiasm a pair of boots which had been newly greased and blackened for the occasion. He told me these were his "election boots" which he had worn for 23 years. There were little holes in them at different points to accommodate them to the corns of the wearer. He remarked that four years ago his feet were so sore he could not put them on, and that was undoubtedly what occasioned the loss of the ticket. This year they were all right and he felt great confidence in the result. Sometimes these farmers have a very homely but clear way of putting things.

Four years ago I spoke in a room over the store in a small village in Indiana. The day was inclement, yet the farmers gathered in considerable numbers. One of the hardest looking men in the audience was a stout old fellow in canvas trousers begrimed with mud, who, in answer to an inquiry regarding his health, said that he was "afflicted considerably with the rheumatism, but could hardly expect anything better, since he was 80 years old." Turning the conversation to politics, he began to sum up the tariff question, which was then pending, as follows: "It seems to me that the republicans is claimin' that it is the duty of the government to take care of the rich in hopes that the rich may then take care of the poor"—a statement which to a believer in the tariff reform represented by Grover Cleveland seemed to epitomize the democratic argument as well as anything I ever heard. I afterwards learned that this old fellow has by frugality and good management acquired a farm of some 500 acres in the neighborhood, and that he was one of the wealthiest men in the county. It does not do to count upon appearances in making an estimate of the men who attend these meetings.—William Dudley Foulke, in City and State (Philadelphia).

Eton's Playgrounds.

We are indebted to the headmaster at Eton, Rev. Edmond Warre, D. D., for the following: "As playing-fields at Eton, the area for cricket is (inclusive of surroundings) between 40 and 50 acres. The 'playing-fields,' properly so called, are a little over 30 acres. But besides these, there are about 15 acres which have been added from time to time as the needs of the school required. And now a fresh piece of ground of about 12 acres is to be laid down for cricket. The football grounds are numerous and scattered, and I can hardly give you the acreage. But owing to the Lammas tenure the greater part of the grass land round the college cannot be built upon, and so there is no difficulty in obtaining ample space for all games."—Tit-Bits.

War Dogs.

In German military maneuvers of this year, dogs will be used in the ambulance department. At the command "seek," accompanied by a gesture indicating the direction in which the search is to be made, the trained dog goes off to the field, finds the wounded man, returns with a cap, helmet or a piece of clothing, brings this to the ambulance men, and then returns with them to the spot at which the wounded man lies.

READY-MADE HOUSES.

A Seattle Firm Ships a Two Story Building to Japan.

Evidences of the enterprise of Seattle business firms found a unique expression upon the sailing of the Kinsaku Maru for the Orient when the Korry mill shipped to Japan a full two-story house, in sections, or, as the commercial term would make it, "knock-down," ready to be set up as soon as delivered upon the site for it.

The scheme was tried with signal success by the enterprising lumber and mill men of Chicago and Minneapolis during the days of the phenomenal development of the prairie states, and to-day, in a condition of greater prosperity, there is occasionally dropped down in Kansas and Nebraska a "knock-down" house that is soon set up in a place perhaps remote from the business centers and lumber-yards. The Chicago and Minneapolis houses were the logical successors of the "dug-out" and "teepee," in the same way that the Seattle house must in time supersede the constructions of bamboo in Japan, where the product of the Korry mill is to find a resting place. The sending of a ready-made house to Japan can hardly be called an experiment, its success having been assured before the work was commenced. The Yokohama agent of the mill had reported, what everyone knew, that the timber of Japan was that of the cultivated forest, scrubby and small, unfit for anything but the roughest construction. This fact has appeared in the shipments of lumber, dressed and undressed, that have been going west as fast as steamers and sailing vessels could move the output of the mills.

The house that will go over the Kinsaku Maru will be an example of American cottage architecture, two full stories high, 24x32 feet on the sides. There are two rooms on the ground floor, a hallway and an open stairway. The upper floor has two rooms and a small hallway. The chimney is of terra cotta. All rooms are provided with closets, and there is a bathroom with modern plumbing on the upper floor. There is nothing lacking in the construction. They paint to brighten the outside, the varnish to finish up the interior, the sashes already glazed, the doors sized and finished to fit the openings, and even cloth for covering the interior and wallpaper to brighten things up and make the little American house altogether American—everything is in readiness.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

THE LATE M. PAUL MASSON.

France Loses Her Most Distinguished Practical Joker.

The gaiety of France may, perhaps, for a moment be eclipsed by the death, at Strasbourg, of a man famous only for his wit, and, indeed, the report of his death is not an additional joke. M. Paul Masson, alias "Le Mystereux," after being a judge in Algeria and Chandanagar, came back to Paris to fill a post at the National library, and he beguiled his spare time by joking. One day he sent out invitations to his marriage with a Dahomey negress then on view at the Jardin d'Acclimatation, the ceremony to be performed at the Musee Guinet by M. Maurice Barres, the "decadent." Another time the president of the chamber received a letter purporting to be the resignation of his seat by the radical M. Maujan. When the seceding artists started a rival salon at the Champs de Mars, M. Meissonier received a letter, signed "Oisirs," announcing a gift of 50,000 francs. When the bricklayers' laborers were on strike, a letter signed "Corrouchi" offered them a subscription of 100,000 francs. Another time the academy received a letter professing to be from the librarian of the senate soliciting a vacant chair. After the St. Mande railway accident the Academy of Sciences received a paper dedicated "To the manes of my beloved aunt; a victim of the accident," proposing to prevent such disasters by providing all engine drivers with spurs. M. Joseph Bertrand, the secretary member, whose function it is to open letters and state their tenor, glanced, as usual, at the opening lines, and without suspecting a joke, said: "This will be referred to our railway committee." After this achievement M. Masson might fairly have retired on his laurels.—Paris Correspondence London Times.
